To our sister in life. I know your mom would want you to know:

That when today starts without her, don't you weep or moan. She is rejoicing in the heavens now that God has called her home; but just as she turned to walk away a tear fell from her eye, so many of her loved ones never got to say goodbye.

God in all his glory, sitting upon his throne, reached down his hand and she gladly went on home. he said "my Faithful servant your time on earth has past- come join me in the heavens where life forever lasts.

When today starts without me (she said) know that we are never far apart for everytime you think of me I'm right there in your heart. Therefore lift your head to the heavens, I'm there having so much fun, although, I know I won't see my loved ones again ...until tomorrow comes.

PS: Remember everytime you feel the wind on your face - it's mom giving you a warm embrace - saying I love you daughter for all that you are.

Always your sister and brother
