September 25, 1954 - August 15, 2018

Going Home Celebration For Gregory Calloway:

Gregory Calloway was born on September 25, 1954. He was raised by his parents, Robert D. Parks (deceased), Sarah P. Parks (deceased) and also his beloved grandmother, Veronia Calloway (deceased), known as “Mama.”

Although Greg did not complete a formal education, he was wise beyond his years. He was able to secure a position at Chrysler Motors at the young age of seventeen, where he worked for many years. He lived a very full and interesting life, filled with peaks and valleys. He often talked about the many mistakes he had made in life and how thankful he was for the day that he finally woke up and turned his mess into his message. With the support of family, DACNA and its body of members, Greg managed to conquer his addictions to cigarettes, alcohol, and narcotics, always encouraging others to do the same. He was most proud that his mother was able to witness his sobriety before her passing.

More than anything, Greg cherished spending time with family and traveling throughout the country. But it was Georgia that held a special place in his heart. It was like a second home to him.

He showed remarkable strength in recent years, as he battled many health issues. Throughout it all, he read his daily devotionals, kept in touch with his many family and friends, always encouraging others who are struggling to join a support group so that they too could regain control over their lives.

Gregory Calloway departed this life August 15, 2018. May he rest in peace.

“ Lost for words, but this brother has been like a member of my family since the early seventies, and when he's in our present we don't see a friend...we see family...
