“ Ali, was a dedicated soldier in bodybuilding. He took his craft serious and he understood the commitment to maintaining a healthy body. His dedication was unwavering, if you wanted to get in shape he was the guy! I appreciate his friendship and his willingness to help you get it right. May God cradle him and may he rest in eternal Peace. 🙏 I will miss you my brother. Job well done! 🍀 see you on the other side 😭

“ Ali Ismael Bey

My condolences to Ali's family and friends. I knew Ali when we were young, innocent and full of insightful energy. We had good and bad times and as we crossed each other's growing path we still remained cordial with one another.

Back when Ali had waves in his hair. We were at BB's party store and upon our leaving we were talking and I touched his hair to say I like your waves. Ali got highly upset and we had some words back and forth. Later that day at the corner of Fenkle and Hubble as I was walking to the store ALi was with some girls and pointed at me and said "there she go".

The young lady pointed and said is this who you talking about, we're not gone fight her and said boy you crazy. Ali gave a head gesture of confusion like what and then in a confused state of mind just walked away.

Reflecting on another enlightening encounter we had was at a night club that had pool tables and Ali was well known for playing there. I was bar hopping at the time of stopping by and I got in on the slot to play. Ali saw me and saw it as a moment to whoop me in a pool game, but what he didn't know is that I grew up playing on the pool table with my dad at home. Needless to say once again Ali was not too happy when I beat him at the pool table.

As time progressed I saw Ali everywhere around town. I especially enjoyed when he would challenge a race run with himself to run all the way downtown with stride, and seek others to do the same. I also remember something very challenging happening to him and I can only imagine it being one of the most scariest, saddest, and life learning moment for him and that was the lost of his friend.

Ali to your spiritual being it is with great pleasure to say I enjoyed our encounters and positive outcomes be it good and bad. You will be solely missed and I wish you nothing but peace in your next life and this time upon your re-entry bring some of that same charisma with you.

Rest Easy and you will forever be a part of my life journey.

*Sincerely,
Pam from Hubbell*
