A Time to be Born

Amy Denise Allen entered the world on a crisp November morning in 1970. Born in Detroit, Michigan the youngest of four, Amy was embraced by the love and support of her parents Restee and James Allen, and her siblings, Pamela, Kenneth, and Crystal.

A Time to Grow

Amy's love for music and dance blossomed at a young age. Her voice soared in the True Love Missionary Baptist Church Youth Choir, and her body found expression through jazz and modern dance. Amy's journey led her to Indianapolis, where she graduated from Northwest High School, forging a trail of friendships and fond memories. Amy's faith blossomed and led her to accept Christ at Ebenezer International Ministries, a spiritual foundation that would guide her throughout her life.

A Time to Love

Amy's life transformed when she welcomed the greatest joy of her life, Jeremy into the world. From the moment he was born, their bond was undeniable, a love that transcended words and defied any obstacle. Motherhood became her life's focus. Amy dedicated herself to ensuring her son felt cherished and supported, raising him with love and instilling the importance of following his passions.

A Time to Achieve

Amy pursued a successful career at the Detroit Free Press for several years.

Although injury forced her to change paths, her spirit remained undimmed. Long after leaving the workforce and navigating through life, Amy found solace in her love for music and learning new things. She enjoyed evenings listening to house music and discussing her favorite artists with Jeremy, sparking his curiosity and appreciation for performing arts. As she matured and her interests evolved, she developed a renewed interest in Black history and politics, showcasing her lifelong curiosity and desire to understand the world around her.
