A Homegoing Celebration For The Life Of
Clara Mae Chatmon

Gates Opened: June 9, 1940 Gates Closed: September 13, 2014

Clara's Story:

Clara Mae was born to the late Nancy Brown and the late Doc Lott, in Jonesboro, Arkansas. She did not have a close relationship with her natural father, but knew of him very well. Clara accepted her mother's marriage to David Hurn, the man who became her father in her eyes, for the rest of her life.

Clara was the second child of twelve children. She attended the Parkin School District in Jonesboro. In 1957, Clara decided to leave Jonesboro, Arkansas and moved to Detroit, Michigan where she obtained her General Education degree. In 1968, Clara dedicated her life to the Muslim religion, where she became known for her cooking, including the famous bean pies. Clara was united in holy matrimony to the late Arthur James Chatmon, in 1971. Clara's dream was to become a registered nurse. She started to pursue her dream in 1974, at Wayne County Community College, but God had another plan. In 1979, she became a Certified Nurse Assistant at Fairlane Nursing Home. She was recognized for her hard work, and dedication to the elderly. In 1995, she re-dedicated her life full circle to Christianity. She retired in 1997, but continued to enjoy life at home. Clara was a very well-rounded person, and respected by many. She took on the name Ma or Mom, not only to her children, but to children in the community as well. The same respect was gained from the younger children. She was not just his or her grandma or granny, but also to the community as well. Clara was a member of New Resurrection Faith Ministries.
