

Mrs. Delores Adana Mixon

November 3, 1938 - January 5, 2017

Celebrating the Life of Delores Adana Mixon:

Delores Adana Mixon (McDowell-Jones) was born on November 3, 1938 to Hudson Jones and Classie Mae Shaw of Atlanta, Georgia. She was the sixth of 12 children (Beulah Jones, Rudolph Bailey, Hudson Jones, Charles Jones, Gerald Jones, Donald Jones: all who preceded her in death ... Andrew (June) Jones, Sandra Gaines, Beverly Jones and Carol Hairston).

Delores earned her high school diploma in 1977 in Detroit, Michigan. She accepted Christ and became a member of Little Rock Missionary Baptist Church where she learned to share love in Christ. Delores was a woman who obeyed God's second commandment with fervency "loving every neighbor as herself."

Delores' first marriage was to the late Arnold McDowell. Her second husband and love of her life, James Mixon, was joined together in harmonious matrimony on November 4, 1994. They shared some the best times of her life on Sunday evenings giving the "Euclid family" a fashion show that was unforgettable every time they stepped out for good times.

Delores was a waitress for 38 years at Marriott (Renaissance) Hotels in Downtown Detroit. She worked side-by-side with her sister Sandra and niece

Sandy (known as the "three amigos") until she recently retired. De-lotto@1725 as she was known on the job, was the best at providing attentive service to all whom she served. She enjoyed slotting at Motor City Casino, and old movies. She enjoyed laughing and spending time with her family. She also loved fine clothes and was known as the Sunday "Diva."

Delores unconditional love empowered her with the anointing of "giving." She was a lender and not a borrower. She loved her children, grandchildren and adopted "children" with love and grace. Delores was a woman who spoke the truth in LOVE and provided great life advice to whomever needed it. To know DELORES was to love Delores! She made many sacrifices for her family and extended family. She was a virtuous woman of many colors. She fed all who came into her kitchen with loving soul food.
