“El’Verson was my therapist until he left the practice and one of the things we worked on was processing grief. I keep switching between crying and laughing at the fact that he was so good at his job, I know how to process this grief in a healthy way.

During a session I shared how I felt toward someone that passed saying, “they’d be so proud of me if they could see me now.” After unpacking that thought, El’Verson lightheartedly said “if anything ever happens to me, know that I’m proud of you right now as you are.”

I’m so grateful say I was a client of his. The first time we spoke was him informing me that my insurance said he was out-of-network but he was going to double check with the office because they’ve billed that insurance company plenty of times before. I was blown away by how willing he was to go above and beyond.

During our sessions he would joke that if he had our sessions recorded he would “have a job at Stanford” and I’d always counter that by saying, “nah you’d have your own department” and I was so serious. One day he will.

“ With a heavy heart, I remember such a sweet, kind, and handsome young man taken far too soon at just 27 years young. You had such a loving spirit and always made time for his family, which speaks volumes about who you were! El'verson will be deeply missed and forever remembered.

With love,
Your Big Cousin, Darlene

“ *Our deepest sympathies to El's family and friends. I had the privilege to coach El at Albion College. GREAT young man who was an amazing person and football player. As he continued his education he regularly came to practices and spoke to groups and individual student athletes. He made a huge impact on many students and student athletes!! El Verson grew into a wonderful young man who impacted many. God Bless and God Speed. Al Slamer and Maureen Slamer

“ I am deeply sorry for your loss. Young El, as we called him in his youth, was a bright, determined, driven young man who grew into an intelligent, accomplished, and formidable adult. His life, though far too short, was clearly marked by purpose.

To the family and siblings, please accept my heartfelt condolences.
