

Mrs. Eliza Mae Stewart

February 6, 1934 - July 14, 2014

Her Journey:

Loving, strong, selfless, kind ... the list goes on for all the ways you could describe Eliza Mae Stewart. But the one word that perhaps best describes her is "family." For Eliza, her family was her life.

Born February 6, 1934 to John and Eliza Franklin in Marshall, Texas, Eliza showed heart, grit and compassion from a very young age. She moved to Detroit, Michigan as a teenager, where she was educated and worked as a beautician.

Eliza cherished her home in Detroit, always making anyone who walked through the door feel welcomed and loved. If you were hungry, you were fed. Cold, you were warmed. Lonely, you were comforted. She was more than a neighbor — she was the foundation for love, hope and promise.

When Eliza talked, you listened. Not out of intimidation, but inspiration — because you knew that whatever she spoke came from her heart. Her stories and reflections were filled with humor, love and, if you paid attention, a nugget for you to take and apply to your own life. That's what she did, so effortlessly — she nurtured others to achieve their full potential.
