“ Wow, is all I can say in this moment. It had been years since I last saw you until Saturday, July 15th as I sat next to you at the wedding. I truly enjoyed spending time with you, laughing and talking. It was so good to see you! But, it is saddening to know that was our last moment together. Rest peacefully!

“ Dad,

I'm so grateful that our last moments together were of peace, laughter and love. Father's Day, you got to enjoy us at brunch. Sharing Shawn's first Father's Day with Jameire. The phone call I got from you right before I left for vacation because, per usual, your Lucille, my mother, wasn't happy with something you said. It was kinda funny and you were trying to explain yourself. The Facebook message, "Glad you are back, love you." means everything because I hadn't been able to get you your souvenir from St. Lucia just yet.

We've come a long way as Father and Daughter. Age and time can heal so much and for us it worked miracles. We were the only ones that needed to understand "us" and our relationship. I'm happy I had the time with you that I did and that I have nothing but happy memories to revel in for years to come. There was always a laugh to be had when I answered your call. Even with your health there wasn't much complaining from you. If anything I had to rush you off the phone when you would go too far back in you and my Mama's history and it became TMI, lol. You would laugh and say "alright, alright, love you bye." And quiet as it is kept, she still cared about you too. Always questioning had I talked to you, "it's Father's Day make sure you call him", or "how's he doing, is he still smoking?". She cared more than she would tell you lol. Although unexpected and untimely in the eyes of your loved ones, you fell asleep on your own terms and I'm grateful for that peace. Rest up, Daddy. We won't forget you ever. - Love your daughter Joi, AKA "Josephine"
