“ Still Heavyweight Yg (Gregory McDonel)'s family remembers him as a bright and enthusiastic gifted presence in our family, from the time that he was a little boy. One favorite story about him was when he came home one day, at five years old, and told his grandfather, our cousin Lorenzo Jackson, that someone had been following him all the way home. Come to find out, the person following him, was his shadow (smile!). Lorenzo enjoyed sharing that story with me. However, there are any others, including the fact that he earned two years of college credit while still in high school, spoke at least three languages, had just graduated from college, and is a well known rapper in Detroit. Most of all, his Aunt Myrna Jackson remembered his love of his family.
