“ Dear Granddad,
I'm sorry to be having to write this to you on such short notice. I was hoping to be able to call you tomorrow so we could talk like we normally do on Sunday nights and I could get your analysis on the heavyweight title bout that's going down tonight. Ain't no telling who's going to win but I'm going with the one you put me up on a while ago because when it come to sports, you were something like an expert,lol. I wish I would've had more time to kick it and build with you. I know we hadn't even really yet scratched the surface but just to talk to you every weekend was something I appreciated and was an important custom to me. I regret that I didn't get the chance to hear all of the stories from you about growing up in the Black Bottom on Hastings way back in the day. I enjoyed the few you were able to share with me though like how your father, my great grandfather, would take you out to Kentucky with him for the derby's and would holler at his buddy Cassius Clay Sr. Thanks to you I know a little more about my roots and what we came from. As your name lives on granddad, the saga continues and the history is still being written. I'm just so glad that you got to be blessed with the long fruitful life you were and that I was given the opportunity to know you. I pray that I inherit some of your strength and longevity. You were loved and will be missed. I love you and will miss you.
Rest easy.

“ *Dad, 2Cor Chapter 5
Time seems like it's never enough. Yet I'm grateful for the time we spent getting to know how our ways we're alike. The human part of me feels sadness but the spiritual part of me feels joy for you. I will miss your voice but I keep you in my heart, and as you would always say "Be careful til we see each other.
Love your Daughter,
Henrietta*
