“ I remember those times when she was in and out of Children's Hospital, battling cancer, not once but twice. You would expect to walk into a solemn & very quiet atmosphere but not with Jessica. Not with most kids on her floor. Any given time you walked into her room she had that smile beaming & look of happiness on her face. We knew she was sick, she knew she was sick. But she didn't let that stop her from making the most out of very little. She was one tough cookie, even as a small child. She had so much positive energy that you couldn't help but be drawn to her. As adults we naturally tend to grow apart from one another as we venture out on our own, become working people, moms & dads, to the point that we only see each other on special occasions or, unfortunately, sad occasions, such as this. But, when someone leaves us just as she has, they are truly missed whenever those sparse occasions come around. Jessica will truly be missed by many. May she sing with the Angels for all Eternity.
