March 28, 1959 - December 16, 2020

In Loving Memory Of

Michael Jerome Brown (affectionately known as Bingo) was born March 28, 1959 in Detroit, MI to Cleveland and Ida Mae Brown. He grew up in Royal Oak Township. He accepted Christ at an early age and often joked about being baptized multiple times because of his bad behavior. Later in life, he became a member of Second New Hope Missionary Baptist Church under Pastor Eric Burr.

He was the youngest of five children who were separated at a very young age. After his parents' death, he and his brother Dwight were adopted by his uncle and aunt Robert and Elacie Hubby. From this, he gained three siblings. Amir, Roslyn and Bryan.

He attended Oak Park Public Schools where he played football and wrestled. Later he attended vocational school for facilities management. Then, he started a custodial company.

In 1980, he began dating Angela Lyles and raised her daughter Eboni as his own. Later, they had Nicole and Michael Jr. As a family, they enjoyed road trips, concerts and regularly attending Softball City. You haven't laughed until you witnessed Bingo and Michael Jr. play the dozens. Although he had a small family, he was a part of every family in the township. One of his favorite things to do with his family was play cards. Everyone had love for Bingo, especially kids.

Bingo was a natural born hustler. He was a jack of all trades and had a job from the time he was eight years old. He worked as milk man (helper), a paper boy, a janitor, an entrepreneur, carpenter and driver. Of all the jobs he held, he admitted working for Pearl Wright was his favorite.

Since a kid, Bingo had a great sense of style and fashion. From his hair to his shoes, he took pride in being the sharpest person in the room, and he usually was. Bingo had many hobbies that included, baseball, fishing, bowling, traveling but most of all, he enjoyed making people laugh. His personality was larger than life and he had such a way with words. He could make you smile even if he got on your last nerve. Bingo was truly loved and respected by many.
