“ If we believe in God, we must believe that Brittany is in a better place. It is ok for us to grieve, but we must gradually replace our grief with wonderful memories and the good times that we shared with her so she will live on in our hearts with Joy, and not Sorrow. If we can not get up in the morning and see the gift sunlight and the warmth upon our face, then the enemy has won. God knew us in the womb, he knew the day we would be born and the day we would die. He has the perfect plan, and right now we can not see it because we are grieving, but Audrea, Brittany did not leave here on a whim, it may have been to remind all of us how precious our lives are and to bring together relationships that had been lost, What an Awesome God we serve! I will continue to pray for you Big Sister. I Love You, but God Loves You more!##imported-begin##The Williams Family##imported-end##

“ I received the shocking news about our little Brittany on Saturday August 27, 2005. I am still in total disbelief about this. I had previously called earlier that day to my friend at the foot locker in Michigan to get Brittany and her sister Ashley tennis shoe (sorry gym shoes) from a previous promise I had made to her. It is great sadness and sorrow that I was unable to complete this task before the events previous. However I will complete Brittany's last request.##imported-begin##Darryl Perry##imported-end##

“ To the family:

We know that there are no words that we can say that would take away the hurt and pain. However, we know that Jesus Christ is a healer and he shall take away all of your sorrow. Know that Brittany was loved and will forever remain in our hearts.
