“ First, may God bless you Aahlee, Shaay and Family. You all have my deepest condolences. Aahlee, hey brother I'm here with you. Moms are the toughest and my heart knows just what you are going through. When my mom passed away in 1998, it seemed as if there was nothing that could stop the pain, but I knew of one that could help me through it all, God and most of all, His love. I also feel that it had to be very hard on you and family to have seen all that your mom had to endure. God still loves even in pain, even when the one that means the world to us is going through so much.

Family, I want you to know that you are not alone and there will be some tough days ahead, some better days, some days of just getting through, but please know that God will help you through all the days. Aahlee and Shaay may your mom live on in your heart, may she walk beside you in spirit and continue to fill your hearts with her love, the way you know she loves & that she watch over you always. In my heart, this is what I think our moms are and will be doing. May the Lord bless you and keep you Aahlee, Shaay and family. I will keep you all lifted in prayer.

Your brother & friend,

“ To LaTonya Holloway.
Tho we never got the chance to meet, I take great joy in your life from the stories your son has shared over the years. You meant so much to him and in his voice you hear the love and admiration he has for his mother.
Aahlee over the years has become extended family to me and has given us all wisdom at one point or another which I knew he probally picked up from you. You are loved and will be so missed by those who loved you the most. May God bless The Holloway Family Always.
In Loving Memory of Mrs.Holloway.

“ Aahleee and Family,

You are in my prayers and I pray that you will channel your loss into loving energy to love a little more, a little harder. I'm sure your Mom would want that, this is not a time for mourning...her physical is gone, but her omniscience lives on; and as long as you and your siblings live, she remains with you through eternity!##imported-begin##Julia Brazzil-Mannings##imported-end##
