

Ms. Neenah Lee Sabir

June 5, 1953 - December 5, 2015

Celebrating The Life Of Neenah Lee Sabir:

Neenah L. Sabir was born June 5, 1953 in Omaha, Nebraska to the parents of Russell and Phyllis Jamerson. In Neenah's youth she displayed leadership and was known as the firecracker of the family. One of Neenah's hidden talents was singing in a female group and Neenah thought she was Diana Ross of the Supremes.

Neenah graduated from Technical High School in June 1971 and received a Bachelor of Science in Social Work from the University of Nebraska at Omaha in 1975.

Neenah was adventurous and right after graduating from college she moved to Detroit, MI (Motor City).

Parenting her only daughter, Ikhlas Iddeen this young mother met the challenge of improving her life and successfully earned a Master's Degree in Social Work from the University of Michigan in 1988. She is a loyal member of the National Association of Social Workers.

Neenah accepted Christ at the Word of Faith International Christian Center in 1988. She was short in stature but mighty in praise and faithfully served at the 24-Hour Prayer Line, served as a Touch Group Leader and volunteered at the church's bookstore. Prior to her failing health, Neenah was also the proprietor of Grace Counseling.

Neenah made her transition on December 5, 2015. She truly fought a courageous fight and persevered through multiple afflictions.
