

Ms. Phyllis Ann Williams

November 26, 1950 - December 2, 2013

Phyllis Ann Williams was born on November 26, 1950 to Leroy and Jessie Belle (Hartgrove) Degree in Shelby, NC; she was one of ten children. Growing up Phyllis was a vibrant girl and determined to be successful. She moved to Detroit, MI in 1966 and attended Northern High School. She went on to earn her cosmetology license and started her own successful hair salon. Phyllis also worked for Chrysler for 22 years as an auto assembly worker and retired in 1997.

In 1972, Phyllis married Bernard Williams and from this union three sons were born: Byron, Myron and Kenneth.

Phyllis was a servant of God who was an avid bible reader and a prayer warrior. She was a faithful member of Christian Life Church in Macomb, MI and was part of the church choir.

Phyllis was a great mother, hard worker, giver, sister, wife, teacher, and woman of GOD with a witty sense of humor. She has mothered many children from other families and has probably straightened most of you out that are reading this now. You may have heard her famous line "Hey, what's your problem!"

If Phyllis was here right now she would say fight for success, don't let nobody take anything from you, stand up for yourself, believe in yourself, and never stop learning. If Phyllis has Blessed you in your life then Bless her back by taking care of yourself and never quitting.

“ Phyllis is my cousin and very dear to me. She is apart of my earliest memories. She came to Detroit and lived with us when I was four. I remember Phyllis as having a most dignified bearing. My dad has said that he told her in September that she always struck him as a teacher. And that kinda captures her right. Her seemed to have a properness to her. But she was always quiet to me though in my head I recall her hearty laughter, leaning sometimes to one side when she did nd remember and still live by things she has said to me. I found that when she spoke it mattered and that there were truth in her words. She came off as very competent, even to my mom whom Phyllis say as an older sister. So, when Phyllis was taking nursing classes, my mom would instruct us to do according to her learning--no questions asked. Uh, don't drive with a full bladder, I recall one lesson being. If u should be in a collision ur bladder might burst. I have thought about that on every long distance road trip I've taken.

I also recall Phyllis' the diversity of her talent. I would rush home from law school to have her do my hair in her basement. She took such care. And on par with everything else, I appreciated how she trusted my sisters and I with her sons. We babysat. Her smart, gorgeous always well-dressed sons. I remember picking probably Myron and Kenny years later to take on a visit to a court. I was so impressed with them. They were kids but they were acting like professionals, shaking hands, asking interesting questions. I was thinking even then, "wow, Phyllis, what mighty fine work."

Mighty fine work indeed, dear cousin, go on and get ur crown.
