“ You would think that it would be better by now, that I would no longer cry , that I should have adjusted to this thing called life. But nope it feels worse knowing that all of my roots have been removed, that my children will never know the people that gave me so much strength. The thought that the essence of family has to be recreated by me for my children blows me away, but that is indeed my mission.

You were the best dad a girl could ever have and it is my mission to teach your grandchildren how great you truly were. We love you ❤️
