“ My fondest memories of cousin Robbi was when she and my mom were co-workers. Prior to them working together, I would see Robbi occasionally during family functions (holiday, get together, etc.). The thing about Robbi was that unless someone acted up due to silliness and alcohol influence, she would never get mad. And that's what I liked about her was that she never had a temper. She would always give me hugs and ask about school whenever she rode with my mom to pick me up. Another fond memory was the fact that she would always talk about her grandchildren, and I believe that they, more than anyone, would miss her dearly.

R.I.P. cousin, Robbi.
